Is there a health law topic you would like to propose for next year's Health Law Institute? We would love to hear from you.

Share your ideas

We know that you know best what's happening in the health law arena. The planning will be beginning soon for the 2017 Institute, so our search is on for timely topics. Based on audience responses, we know that audiences love practical "how to" advice, analysis of cutting edge legal trends in health law and the latest information on regulatory changes. They also like hearing from both the private and public sectors.

We welcome your suggestions of specific topic(s) about which you would like to teach. Just mail, fax or e-mail to cwepfer@pbi.org a short abstract (50-100 words) outlining the proposed topic and possible copresenters. The deadline for submitting your proposal is Friday, July 29, 2016.

Tell us about the format you would like to use.

Engaging your audience is as important as identifying your topic. Our audiences appreciate creative teaching approaches that make good use of audiovisuals and keep the audience interested and involved.

Your recommendations of possible new faculty would be appreciated.

We would also appreciate your recommendations of knowledgeable and dynamic speakers you would like to hear from at the Institute.

We look forward to hearing from you so that we can work together to make the 23rd Annual Health Law Institute the best one yet!

Your ideas will help us make the 23rd Annual Health Law Institute
the BEST ever!
